

Give the gift that multiplies!

This holiday season, please consider giving the gift that truly keeps on giving: the gift of education.

Educating girls in developing nations has a multiplier effect that expands the benefits of education not just for each girl, but for her family, community and region.

Girls who receive an education find more sustainable livelihoods, are less likely to develop serious illnesses like malaria and HIV/AIDS, can better protect themselves from violence, abuse and trafficking, are more likely to have fewer children, healthier pregnancies, and more live, healthy births, can better access resources for nutrition and sanitation for their families, are more likely to educate their own children, and are more active in their communities. An education gives girls and their families the tools to improve all aspects of their lives and to build their own future, which, in turn, strengthens our global community as a whole. Education: truly the gift that multiplies!

Your support of Women's Global Education Project goes a long way in making a life-changing education possible for the most vulnerable members of our global community. Please consider giving this holiday season, either by mailing your check with the form below or via our secure online donations page at www.womensglobal.org.

Thank you, and Happy Holidays from everyone at Women's Global!

Board of Directors: Malii Brown,
Sarah Delezen, James McDonald,
Tracy Nicholas, Joan Sherman,
Executive Director Amy Maglio

Women's Global Education Project Holiday Giving 2008

NAME: _____

ADDRESS: _____

EMAIL: _____ AMOUNT: _____

Please make checks payable to Women's Global Education Project. Donations are tax-deductible. Thank you!

Women's Global is going green with online communications! Please send us your email address with this form or by emailing us at info@womensglobal.org so we can add you to our email list. Thank you!